Question Two:

Read the following text carefully, and then in your ANSWER BOOKLET answer all the questions that follow each text. Your answer should be based on the text.

Text One:

Young people love learning, but they like learning even more if they are presented with information in an interesting and challenging way. Today, I am going to give a talk about how you can use technology in Jordanian classrooms. Here are some ideas: Many classrooms now use a whiteboard as a computer screen. As a consequence, teachers can show websites on the board in front of the class. Teachers can then use the Internet to show educational programmes, play educational games, music, recordings of languages, and so on. In some countries, tablet computers are available for students to use in class. Therefore, students can use the tablets to do tasks such as showing photographs, researching information, recording interviews and creating diagrams. Tablets are ideal for pair and group work. Teachers can perhaps ask their students to start writing a blog (an online diary), either about their own lives or as if they were someone famous. They can also create a website for the classroom. Students can contribute to the website, so for example they can post work, photos and messages. Another way of communicating with other schools is through talking to people over the computer. Most computers have cameras, so you can also see the people you are talking to. In this way, students who are studying English in Jordan can see what students in England are doing in the classroom while they are speaking to them.

1. According to the text, Learning should be presented to young people with information that has two features. Write them down.
2. Quote the sentence that indicates that tablets are suitable for two kinds of work in class.
3. According to the text, by showing websites on the board in front of the class, teachers use the internet to display several things. Write down two of them.

Students can contribute to the website, so for example they can post work, photos and messages. Most young people communicate through social media by which they send each other photos and messages via the internet. Some students like to send messages that are under 140 letters for anyone to read. Teachers can ask students to summarize information about what they have learnt in class in the same way. If students learn to summarize quickly, they will be able to use this skill in the future. We all like to send emails, don't we? Email exchanges are very useful in the classroom. Teachers can ask students to email what they have learnt to students of a similar age at another school. They could even email students in another country. As a result, students can then share information and help each other with tasks. Another way of communicating with other schools is through talking to people over the computer. Most computers have cameras, so you can also see the people you are talking to. In this way, students who are studying English in Jordan can see what students in England are doing in the classroom while they are speaking to them. You can also use this system to invite guest speakers to give talks over a computer. For example, scientists or teachers from another country could give a lesson to the class. If you had this type of lesson, the students would be very excited.

1. Quote a sentence which shows that schools can be communicated via computers.
2. What does the in bold pronoun refer to?
3. There are several benefits of using the whiteboard as a computer screen. Mention four of these benefits.

4. Find a word from the text which means “a regularly updated personal website, usually written in an informal way”
5. Mention two useful things of using the email exchanges.
6. Social Media will positively affect education. How far do you agree with this statement?
7. Students will replace hard copy books by using tablets and smart phones. Think of this statement and, in two sentences, write down your point of view. (2 points)
