A- Read the following texts carefully, then choose the correct answer from A, B, C, or D.

Text (A)

Young people love learning, but they like learning even more if they are presented with information in an interesting and challenging way. Today, I am going to give a talk about how you can use technology in Jordanian classrooms. Many classrooms now use a whiteboard as a computer screen. As a consequence, teachers can show websites on the board in front of the class. Teachers can then use the Internet to show educational programmes, play educational games, music, recordings of languages, and so on.

In some countries, tablet computers are available for students to use in class. Therefore, students can use the tablets to do tasks such as showing photographs, researching information, recording interviews and creating diagrams. Tablets are ideal for pair and group work. Teachers can perhaps ask their students to start writing a blog (an online diary), either about their own lives or as if they were someone famous. They can also create a website for the classroom. Students can contribute to the website, so for example they can post work, photos and messages.

1. Mention two purposes of using the internet inside the classroom?
2. Students prefer learning more as long as information is presented in two ways. Write down them.
3. What does the underlined pronoun (they) refer to?
4. The sentence which states that tablets are not available in all schools in all countries is.....
5. Name two things of students' contributions in their classroom website?
6. From the text, find a word that means "to put a message or document on the internet so that other people can see it"
7. In what way the whiteboard can be useful in the classroom? Write down two things.
8. The writer says that students can create a website for their classroom. Accordingly, suggest two things that a website can help students and teachers through online distance learning.

Text (B)

Most young people communicate through social media, by which they send each other photos and messages via the Internet. Some students like to send messages that are under 140 letters for anyone to read. Teachers can ask students to summarise information about what they have learnt in class in the same way. If students learn to summarise quickly, they will be able to use this skill in future.

Email exchanges are very useful in the classroom. Teachers can ask students to email what they have learnt to students of a similar age at another school. They could even email students in another country. As a result, students can then share information and help each other with tasks.

Another way of communicating with other schools is through talking to people over the computer. Most computers have cameras, so you can also see the people you are talking to. In this way, students who are studying English in Jordan can see what students in England are doing in the classroom while they are speaking to them. You can also use this system to invite guest speakers to give talks over a computer. For example, scientists or teachers from another country could give a lesson to the class.

1. Exchanging emails has two positive consequences on students. Write two of them?
2. What does the underlined pronoun (them) refer to?
3. Most computers have cameras. Write two benefits of having a camera on your computer?
4. Quote the sentence which indicates to the kind of people who could be guest speakers to give talks over a computer.
5. Students can use many ways to communicate with other students in other schools. Write two of these ways?
6. In the last paragraph, the writer has used a collocation. Write it down?
7. If student learn to summarize quickly, they will be able to use this skill in the future. Justify/Explain your answer.
8. Suggest two roles of the teacher inside the classroom?
9. Applying technological educational tools makes the lessons interesting and fun. Suggest three of these tools?

Text (C)

Health conditions in Jordan are among the best in the Middle East. This is largely due to the country's commitment to making healthcare for all a top priority. Advances in education, economic conditions, sanitation, clean water, diet and housing have made our community healthier.

As a result of careful planning, the number of healthcare services has been increasing rapidly over the past years. Although there were remote areas of the country where people had been without consistent access to electricity and safe water, almost 99 per cent of the country's population now has access.

Although the country has been focusing mainly on improving its primary healthcare facilities, it has not neglected its advanced medical facilities. The reputation of Jordanian doctors has spread in the region, and now many more patients come to Jordan for open heart surgery. In Jordan, the open heart surgery programme started in 1970 CE in Amman.

The low infant mortality rate, as well as the excellent healthcare system, have been contributing factors to Jordan's healthy population growth, which will result in a strong work force with economic benefits for the whole country.

1. There are many factors behind Jordan's healthy population growth. Write these factors?
2. What does the underlined pronoun (our) refer to?
3. What does the relative pronoun (where) refer to?
4. People who are living in remote areas had been suffering from two problems which have been solved recently. Write these problems?

9. "Health is wealth". Think of the statement and write down your point of view.

Text (D)

In many countries, an increasing number of young people and adults are overweight or even obese. One reason for this is the growing popularity of fast food, which didn't use to be as common as it is now. Another big factor is lack of exercise. People would often walk to school or work, but these days many more of us drive. Modern technology has also played its part; we spend more and more time focusing on computer screens. Before the Internet was invented, nobody had dreamt of online shopping, but now we can buy almost anything without leaving the sofa.

Health experts have been warning about this trend for years, and their advice is clear. Adults should aim to exercise for at least two and a half hours every week; for children and teenagers the target should be at least an hour a day. This might not sound very much.

Experts recommend a mixture of activities. These should include moderate exercise, such as fast walking, and more strenuous exercise, like running. They also advise exercise that strengthens the muscles, for example sit-ups. The more muscle we build, the more calories we burn, and the fitter we become. In addition, exercise is a great way to cope with stress. In a recent study, patients who had been suffering from depression reported a great improvement after increased physical activity.

1. Obesity was not common in the past because of many reasons. Write two of these reasons?
2. Two groups of people should train at least an hour a day. Write these two groups?
3. Doing exercises has many advantages. Write down two of them?
4. Quote the sentence which indicates to the group that should exercise for nearly twenty minutes a day.
5. The sentence which shows the name of the exercise that health experts recommend to build the muscles and make them strong is:
6. What does the underlined pronoun (its) refer to?
7. From the text, find a phrasal verb that means as "to deal successfully with, or handle, a situation"
8. Suggests two risks of obesity on health.
9. Modern technology plays a role in destroying health. Think of a statement and write down your point of view.

Text (E)

A few years ago, as many as 1,000 schools across the USA started making school years longer by adding up to ten extra days to the school year or by making each school day longer by half an hour. This was because it was found that secondary school students in the USA and the UK were spending the least time at school, with an average school year of 187 days.

The typical Jordanian school year is longer than this. However, none of these are nearly as long as the school year in countries like Japan and South Korea. South Koreans attend school for 220 days per year, and in Japan, the school year numbers 243 days.

Students in Japan, Indonesia and South Korea spend the most time studying in the world. They want to learn as much as they can to ensure excellent exam grades. They go to school for about nine hours, although this includes optional after-school tuition and activities. They also spend about three hours on homework every day, which is three times as much as many other countries. Their high academic achievements do suggest that the longer you study, the better you do in final exams.

In Finland, however, students are usually given less than half an hour of homework per night, and they attend school for fewer and shorter days than 85% of other developed nations. Despite this, they achieve top marks in subjects like Maths and Science. In addition, most students also speak at least two, and often three, languages fluently.

1. Two things related to school days which distinguish Finland from many developed countries. Write them down?
2. What are the similarities between South Korea and Japan in terms of school days and homework?
3. Two indicators show that the education system in Finland is successful. Write down them?
4. Quote the sentence which states that most Finnish students are multilingual or bilingual.
5. From the text, find a word that means "teaching, especially in small groups"
6. What does the underlined pronoun (this) refer to?
7. Find a word in the text that means the same as "something you do not have to do or use, but you can choose to if you want to"
8. What is the purpose of having longer school years in Japan, Korea and Indonesia?
9. Suggest two disadvantages of too much homework.

Text (F)

As my father is originally from Jordan, I grew up speaking Arabic as well as German. However, I had never studied Arabic formally, and when the opportunity came up for me to spend a year in Jordan studying Arabic, I didn't hesitate for one moment.

I have relatives in Jordan and they arranged for me to stay with a wonderful family who live just outside Madaba. I was amazed by the number of international students there, who were not only from Germany, but from all over the world. Most of them had studied Arabic to a high level. I'm very familiar with colloquial Arabic, which is what my family speaks and understands. The Arabic class, in Modern Standard Arabic, was challenging, especially the grammar.

Every week, we had to learn a vocabulary list of around 50 words. We covered many topics. Living with a family helped to improve my Arabic-speaking skills because, while all the students heard Arabic in the classroom and streets, I could also practise it at home. I really put my back into it, and I earned an A on the course.

What impressed me most about students in Jordan was their behaviour and their attitude to studying. All the students who I met appreciated the importance of their university education and the opportunities it would give them to contribute to their country's prosperity. They also showed extremely positive values. Everybody was honest, and people discussed problems rather than getting angry if they disagreed with each other. I made many new friends. I also improved my Arabic speaking, writing and reading skills. My dream is to be fluent in Arabic one day – and as I intend to return to Jordan as often as I can, I know I'm going to make this dream a reality.

1. Many things impressed Anita about her fellow Jordanian students at the university. Write down two of these things?
